Vol.11

Foreword

Like Chinese, English is a very practical and precise language, but it can also be quite artistic and fun. Hong Kong has a long tradition of using English for business and trade, as well as enjoying English music and movies. English connects Hong Kong to the world and attracts many tourists from other countries. English provides a lot of jobs for Hong Kong companies. Many people in English-speaking countries care deeply for Hong Kong and love its culture.

Learning English can help you to become more intelligent, express your heart's feelings and meet new friends. English can change your life. A Chinese proverb states "To learn another language is to gain a new window to see the world with."

Within this volume of Budding Writers are writing samples from our students who have shown the ability to communicate clearly, creatively and concisely with English. It is the school's sincere hope that you enjoy the skills and care these students have shown in their writing. Thank you.

An Interesting Dream

I had an interesting dream last night. I dreamt that my brother Sam and I were walking in a park. As we walked past a water fountain, a large spaceship landed nearby. We were so surprised that we could not speak. Suddenly, two aliens came out from the spaceship! Sam and I were frightened. We ran and hid behind a tree.

The aliens walked towards us, stopped and waved. We didn't approach them, but carefully waved back. Although they each only had one eye, they still looked cute. One of them spoke to us. 'You can come to explore our planet.' 'OK!' replied Sam, 'I'm curious to see it.'

The aliens brought us into their spaceship. 'It'll be a fifteen-minute journey because our spaceship is faster than a rocket,' said one of the aliens.

Then, we arrived at the aliens' planet - Venus! Venus's food is very different from the Earth's! We stayed there for one day and then returned to the Earth.

This dream was so interesting. I hope I can meet the aliens in my dreams again.

A Personal Description

Hi, my name is Karina. I am 12 years old. I live in Tuen Mun with my mum and a maid. My father passed away when I was little and my mother frequently goes on work trips. So, she hired a maid to care for me.

I think I'm shy because I don't like talking to strangers. However, my primary school classmates thought I was kind because I always helped with their English homework. I also helped my teachers with chores. In primary school, my English skills were the best in my class. Even my English teachers thought I was good! Now that I'm a secondary student, I wonder if my English skills will still be better than my classmates. Who knows?

My favorite subject is English. It is useful and easy for me to learn. I like reading English books very much. I usually read them on weekends. I also like drawing. Although I'm not a terribly good drawer, I still sketch TV characters when I'm bored.

I want to learn how to be independent because my mum is always busy. Even though there's a maid to help me, my mum still worries about me when she travels. So, I want to be independent so that she will worry less about me.

I want to improve my Chinese while I'm in secondary school, because it might be the worst of all the subjects that I'm currently learning. Hopefully, my Chinese can eventually be as good as my English is now.

Online Shopping

Do you like online shopping? I like online shopping because it is very convenient.

Online shopping is convenient because you can have items delivered to your home. Therefore, you don't need to carry heavy things. It is easy to get injured when carrying heavy items, so having them delivered to your home is a good way to stay safe.

Online shopping is convenient because you can avoid crowded shopping. Therefore, you don't need to line up at the cashier and wait for a long time. This can save you time to do other things or rest.

Online shopping is convenient because you can compare the prices of products between shops easily. You don't need to walk from shop to shop to compare prices. You just need to check different websites.

In short, shopping online is more convenient than shopping in shops. So, I like online shopping.

A Better School Campus

Dear Editor,

I am the chairperson of my school's Green Club. Recently, I found that the school campus is getting dirtier. I am shocked that so many students are inconsiderate. They throw rubbish everywhere, wasting so much energy and food. I believe we must do something to solve these problems.

First, many students throw rubbish onto the floor in their classrooms. They make the classrooms dirtier and this, in turn, increases the workload of the janitors.

Secondly, I found that students do not switch off the lights and air-conditioners when they leave the classrooms. This wastes a lot of energy and causes an increase in energy consumption at school facilities. Over-use of air-conditioning can also cause global warming and affect our living environment.

Thirdly, many Form One students cannot finish eating their meals during lunch time. This wastes food and energy that students need for the school day. Then students do not pay attention in class because they lack energy, and this can have negative consequences upon their overall health and academic development.

I suggest the school select a student from each class to monitor classrooms and ensure students keep them clean. For example, students should throw rubbish into rubbish bins and put recycling items into recycling bins. Besides, a student from each class should check if the lights and air-conditioners are switched off when students leave the rooms. Last but not least, all Form One students must be told to finish their lunch meals. As encouragement, students who comply can be given small presents.

I believe my suggestions can help us create a better school environment.

Yours faithfully,
Chris Wong

Writing An Email

Dear Pat,

Long time no see. How are you? I have just visited Ocean Park today.

First, we took the 59M bus from the Tuen Mun Ferry Pier to Tsuen Wan MTR Station. On the bus, I saw some people putting their feet up on chairs and spitting on the floor. Their behavior was disgusting. They lacked consideration.

Then, we took the MTR from Tsuen Wan MTR Station to Ocean Park Station. Since it was peak hours, the MTR was very crowded. I felt I could not breathe. Also, some passengers talked on their phones loudly which was very disturbing in the public area.

Eventually, we arrived at Ocean Park. We rode on a suspended cable car and saw beautiful scenery. Next, we watched a dolphin show. The performance was amazing. However, it began to rain. All further activities we planned had to be suspended. I regretted about that.

Except for my ride on public transport, I had a wonderful day at Ocean Park.

It's time for dinner, so I have to stop writing.

Cheers,
Chris

A Visit to Australia

Dear Miss Fong,

I am going to suggest some activities we can do in Australia.

I think that going to an Australian zoo is a good choice. If you choose to do that, we can see famous Australian animals such as kangaroos and koalas. Koalas are cute and sleep 22 hours a day. I know that in these zoos, we can hold the koalas and take photos with them. It will be an interesting experience. We can see Kangaroos too. They are big animals which have a front pouch over their stomach. Kangaroos put their babies in them and go out for a walk together and jump about.

Second, I think that we can go to an Australian secondary school to meet local students. They are all good at speaking English because they live in a country where English is widely spoken. If we go there to chat or study with them, our English will improve. We can also learn more about the similarities that Australian students have with us. We can increase our knowledge if we go there.

Third, I suggest that we go shopping and buy souvenirs. I think a lot of my classmates would be happy to do this. They may like to go shopping and buy souvenirs for their families or friends. Also, we can buy some tasty local food too – like sticky date pudding. It is delicious!

Australia will be a good place for us to visit.

I look forward to your reply.

Your sincerely,
Jackie Wong

A Visit to Australia

Dear Miss Wong,

How are you? Recently, you asked me to give some suggestions for the school trip to Australia. There are three activities I want to do during this trip. I will outline and explain them in this email.

First, I suggest learning English and meeting Australian students during this trip. Many of our classmates' English ability is are not very good. This school trip is a good chance for them to improve their English. When they meet Australian students, they can use English to communicate with them. I believe our English will improve after the trip.

Moreover, I suggest visiting a museum in Australia during this trip. I think Australian history is something our classmates want to learn more about. They would enjoy visiting an Australian museum during this trip. I believe that this will be an eye-opening experience for them.

Finally, I suggest going to a popular shopping center during the trip. Our classmates may be interested in buying souvenirs. At shopping centers, there are a variety of products and souvenirs that students can buy. This would give them a good break from studying all the time.

These are my three suggestions for activities we can do during the school trip. Please send me the reply. Thank you!

Yours sincerely,

My Wonderful Taxi Experience

Hi everyone! This is Chris speaking. Today I would like to share an interesting event that happened last week.

I had just returned from my week-long trip to Thailand. I landed at Hong Kong International Airport at around 2:30 a.m. I wasn't jet-lagged, though I did feel tired while I booked my taxi. My eyes were nearly closed! After claiming my luggage, I went to the taxi stand to wait for my ride. However, just before I fell asleep on the bench, my taxi arrived. The driver loaded my luggage into the trunk. Then I wearily got into the back seat.

I live in Tuen Mun and the journey from the airport is quite long. As it was late at night and there were not any cars on the road, I thought it was going to be a taxi joyride on the Airport Highway. During the ride, I slept like a log. However, the sound of heavy, sudden braking woke me up. The taxi driver pulled over to the side of the highway. I was wondering what happened and I couldn't believe what I saw. There was a car crash. The driver and the passenger next to him were both unconscious. The taxi driver and I immediately rushed over to check on their conditions.

'Call the ambulance, quick!' he shouted.

I called the ambulance calmly while watching him rescue the injured people. He pulled them out and started doing CPR. I was really impressed as I didn't expect him to know these rescue techniques. Five minutes later the paramedics arrived and loaded the rescued people onto the ambulance. The paramedics thanked the taxi driver because the people were saved by his first aid. Finally, after seeing the ambulance drive away, we hit the road again.

I was now wide awake and curious why the driver knew first aid procedures to rescue people. He said he was once a paramedic, but had resigned. I was also curious about how he knew that the car had crashed. From my perspective, I thought it was merely a car malfunction. He said that he saw the glass and debris on the highway, therefore, he pulled up.

When I arrived at my home, it was already six AM! Before leaving the taxi, I praised the driver for his brave actions. He blushed and replied that I was actually the one that saved them as my phone was strong enough to get a signal to call the ambulance. Finally, he drove off in his taxi after seeing me enter the lift.

That night, I saw on news that the driver and passenger are both fine and are already out of the hospital. I was grateful when I saw the news. I hope that more people can help each other out in this wonderful city and make it a better place!

You are a Persian cat. Last night, when you were sleeping, a cat fairy appeared in your dream. She said you would become a human while your master would become your pet cat when you woke up the next morning. Continue the story below.

A Persian Cat

When I woke up, I found what the cat fairy said was no lies....

In the past, my master always treated me harshly. He was a very impatient and negligent person. He did not take care of me very well. He did not feed me regularly. He did not take his pet chores seriously - like brushing, feeding, watering and cleaning me. He usually treated me indifferently and ruthlessly. Also, he often gave me some unsavory and distasteful food which I disliked immensely. He had treated me nonchalantly for over half a year, so I loathed him very much.

However, since I woke up this morning, I discovered that all my fur had disappeared. I looked in the mirror and was astonished to see that my appearance completely resembled my master's!

“Why did I change from a Persian cat to a person with human facial features and limbs?” I asked myself. “The worst thing is that I resemble my obnoxious and hateful master,” I said with dismay. However, I soon felt delighted because I saw an opportunity to inflict revenge on him.

In my master’s bedroom, I soon discovered a Persian cat that looked like me, sleeping sluggishly on the bed. I realized that Chris – my master, had somehow transformed to become me. Chris was now a cat.

I furiously grabbed the cat’s tail, shaking it with all my strength. ‘Chris’ shivered with fear and hid in the corner of the room. I felt pleurably satisfied knowing I’d finally brought revenge upon my master.

Once that was achieved though, I realized I’d have to replace him at work. Chris was a teacher. I had to go to class every day to teach his students. Whereas before I was feline and slept all day, now I was conducting lessons and marking assignments. I tried hard to keep my normal cat behavior like licking, stretching, scratching and yawning a secret from the students. When they saw this – they were too astonished to focus on their studies – and the parents complained!

After working all day, I had to go home and tend to cat chores like giving treats, brushing, watering, feeding, cleaning the kitty litter and cat food dishes. All the while chubby cat ‘Chris’, lay comfortably asleep on my bed. I was beginning to wonder who had really won revenge.

That night, the cat fairy appeared in my dream again. “Fluffy, are you enjoying your time as a human?” she asked. “Not really,” I answered. When I became a person, my life became busier. I can’t adjust to human life. It has been hell for me. Chris is so lazy. He just sleeps and eats all day, treating me like a slave. Please pardon me for wishing to become a human. I'd like to retrieve my original state as a Persian cat..." Suddenly, the room became blurry while the cat fairy's image gradually faded.

Waking up the next morning, my body was once again adorned with its usual pure white fur. What's more, my breakfast was ready for me beside my bed. I'd had enough of revenge and human life. Being a Persian cat was better than being a person. What a delightful way to start each day!

A Letter to A Friend

Dear Peter,

How are you? I haven't written an email to you for a long time. I'm in a weird and awkward situation. As you know my parents got divorced two years ago. My mother met her boyfriend a year ago. His name is Tom. He's a really nice guy. He's tall and energetic. He's wealthy too. He proposed to my mom a week ago and she said yes. I really like Tom but I'm extremely worried about how my life will change after they are married.

My first worry is that Tom might hurt my mother. I know that they're just getting married and they're very happy right now. I'm afraid that after a while though, Tom's feelings for my mother might change. They might fight and get divorced. That'll hurt my mother again! I just don't want her to get hurt again.

My second worry is that my relationship with my mom and Tom will change. I'm worried that my mom will spend less time with me. Right now, I'm quite close to Tom. But when he marries my mum, Tom will become my stepdad. This will make our relationship awkward since he is a close friend of mine.

My third worry is that my own life might change. Where I'm living right now is fine. Yet, I'm worried that we will move to a new house after my mum and Tom get married. I will get a bigger room than the one I have right now, but I would have to get used to the new environment and a new school. Worse still, my DSE exams are coming in a few months. If I move to a new house, I will need time to get used to living in a new home and studying in a new school at the same time. I'm worried that I will be nervous and won't be able to concentrate while studying because of too many changes at the same time.

In general, I really like Tom and I also enjoy spending time with him, but I just feel like it's too fast for them to get married as it will disrupt my life. Maybe you can give me some helpful advice . Perhaps I am just worrying too much.

Best Regards,
Chris

A Very Meaningful Experience

Hello everyone, I am Chris. I recently took part in a volunteer activity that involved visiting senior citizens in their home. It was a very meaningful experience. I learnt that there are a lot of important issues concerning senior citizens we've been unaware of.

I visited multiple senior citizens homes. Most seniors live alone in cubicles. My visit surprised them. It was a pleasure to chat with them and get to know them better. They shared some unexpected stories. The whole experience was very thought-provoking.

People may ask why we need to be concerned about senior citizens. Some regard visiting seniors as a waste of time. But seniors have feelings and needs. Most of them are quite old and it is difficult for them to move around. They need the care and attention of the younger generation.

Most of the seniors I met live alone by themselves and reported feeling quite lonely. It is great that there are people willing to chat and laugh with them. Just like us, seniors need to feel someone cares about them. They seniors also need our practical help. They need someone to assist with getting food and household supplies. Some are at the risk of falling when they are walking outside. It is better if people can volunteer to do these things for seniors and reduce the risk they face.

There are many ways to help seniors, for example, visiting them in their homes or taking them on a day trip to somewhere peaceful. When you visit them in their homes, they feel excited because many seldom have any visitors. They can share their memories and will not feel bored. Also, many seniors don't always have the chance to go out. It is difficult for them to go out without anyone helping them. They will feel younger being outside.

Finally, volunteering with seniors is a wonderful life experience for young people. Volunteer work is not a waste of time. It has taught me many valuable lessons. Even though we are strangers, I have learnt that we need to care for everyone around us. This is how the next generation can learn how to care for us when we get old. This is all I want to share, thank you.

Celebrity Efforts of Preserving the Environment

Good afternoon everyone, I'm Chris Li. Today I'm going to discuss how famous people can try to preserve the environment. I will also explain the reasons for protecting the environment.

First of all, our environmental problems are becoming more serious. The pace of climate change is quickening. Earth is our home, but we are destroying the things which make it livable. For example, Hong Kong people produce thousands of tons of rubbish each day and create a lot of air pollution with their vehicles.

Global warming will become more harmful if we do nothing to deal with our environmental problems. Fortunately some of us have already started to do something. A few Hong Kong celebrities have constantly raised awareness of the problem by producing documentary films highlighting our city's growing impact on global warming - such as rising sea levels, temperature increases and animal extinction. These films also promote solutions to the crisis.

Celebrities can inform the public in other ways too. Some take part in collecting rubbish from beaches. They also demonstrate how to recycle used plastic bottles and old newspapers. Celebrities also appear in government public services announcements about reducing water and electricity usage.

Finally, I want to raise the point that the Earth's fate cannot rely solely on celebrity efforts. Everyone – famous or not, must do something to improve the situation. Let's take action now. This is the end of my presentation, thank you.

Work-Life Imbalance - Any Solution in Sight?

“Daddy, when can you come on a picnic with me and mommy?”

“Sorry, my dear! I need to work on the weekend, so I cannot join you.”

Work-life imbalance not only appears in soap dramas, but also real life. It is very common in Hong Kong. In recent years, this problem has perplexed Hong Kong’s employees. It reduces their rest time and may negatively impact their mental and physical health.

Heavy work loads are one reason why many Hong Kong employees cannot get enough rest. If they have not finished their work, they need to work overtime at the office. Many Hong Kong supervisors just concentrate on company achievement and neglect their employees’ needs.

The Hong Kong Government should legislate standard working hours and impose a ban on unpaid overtime. If employers require workers to work overtime, they need to increase their wages. This law can protect employees’ rights and health by ensuring they complete their workday on time.

However, if employees want to enhance their income, the new legislation can give them the option of voluntarily extending their paid working time. At the same time, the government and Federation of Trade Unions can provide more support and labor subsidies, such as health care and transport allowances. These can help soothe employee’s money worries. They will also have more time to spend with their family and friends.

Finally, Hong Kong is a dynamic, bustling city. It is an international economic and financial center. Many people have to work late hours as they must focus on overseas stock markets. Finding the time to enjoy life may be hard for them. Supervisors often impose strict rules on workers such as not working from home even if employees may have to care for children or elderly parents. The proposed measures can increase the time for workers to tend to family duties.

All the above are reasons why Hong Kong employees must be given paid overtime arrangements. I hope that employers can help their workers build closer, healthier links to their family and friends.

A Report on Cinemas

This report investigates the issue of fewer people visiting cinemas. It will explain why this is happening and suggest what could be done to increase the number of moviegoers.

First and foremost, with many affordable online streaming options available on people's phones and computer devices nowadays, it is inconvenient and expensive for them to go to cinemas and watch movies.

Nowadays technology is rapidly developing. Many movie viewing platforms such as YouTube and Netflix provide different types of films and shows for people to watch. People can choose films they want to watch no matter if they are new or old ones. Moreover, people can watch movies anytime, anywhere. Online applications have dramatically improved the flexibility of watching films as they are more convenient and cheaper than going to cinemas.

Additionally, watching movies in cinema is not economical. The cost of watching movies in Hong Kong is soaring. Nowadays the average price of a movie ticket is as high as $140. For many people this cost is too extravagant. As a result, many consumers have switched to the cheaper online options mentioned before. For example, a Netflix account allows four people to have access to their favorite films at the same time. Users can share the cost of a single monthly fee. This is much more economical and has caused the number of moviegoers to drop.

Furthermore, many people complain it takes a long time to line up before watching a film in a theatre. Also, people complain of interference from people's ring tones on their smartphones. Even worse are the sounds of people who speak and eat loudly. These various elements disturb audiences and ruin their moods. Therefore, many people are reluctant to go to cinemas.

The above are reasons that explain the decrease in the number of moviegoers. In light of these reasons, we have the following suggestions to help solve the problem.

One suggestion is to provide economic incentives that attract customers. For instance, cinemas can set film prices at a reasonable level and provide holiday discounts. On weekends, moviegoers buy two tickets and get one free. This will make the price more affordable. People will be more willing to go to cinemas during their time off. Therefore, this can help increase cinemas' profits.

Finally, cinemas should promote their special features such as surround sound, 3D screens and other special effects like vibrating screens. These kinds of advanced equipment help audiences to enjoy movies more fully. The most important mission of cinemas is to stress their uniqueness and high-tech movie-watching enjoyment. This can boost people's desire to visit cinemas.

To conclude, the above are practical solutions for increasing the number of moviegoers. I hope they are helpful. Thank you.

A Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my disagreement with the recent claim that recent Hong Kong university graduates are less hardworking and unwilling to face challenges than prior generations.

The claim is grossly inaccurate as Hong Kong's work environment is vastly different from just a decade ago. Nowadays, it is much more difficult for new university graduates to obtain full, meaningful employment. Graduates must make great efforts to obtain even low salaried, menial work.

Nowadays, globalization has significantly impacted the workforce new graduates enter. They have to compete with international applicants for job opportunities. Overseas graduates are more favored by employers than local graduates because of their fluent English and international exposure. Fresh Hong Kong graduates have to work much harder and frequently update their skills in order to stay employed.

Moreover, at most international businesses, new Hong Kong graduates are required to work longer hours to satisfy overseas clients' needs. For example, one of my brothers is a new graduate who works for a multinational corporation. He has to work very late every day to communicate and make deals with his clients in the United States. The next morning, he has to report his work progress to his boss. Because of this, he must work overtime most days and sacrifice his leisure time with us. This is just one of the many convincing cases that shows new Hong Kong university graduates are just as hardworking as their older peers are.

In this digital era, fresh graduates are more creative than those in the past as they will utilize advanced technologies. A large portion of repetitive work can be replaced with the aid of artificial intelligence. Fresh graduates can focus more on creativity and higher work efficiency. These young graduates can create a more innovative and efficient workforce culture that benefits not only graduates themselves, but everyone in the workplace.

In conclusion, it is important to realize that fresh graduates are more hardworking and willing to face challenges compared to their counterparts in the past. I hope that the above can help everyone to ignore stereotypes against new graduates and appreciate the efforts and contributions they have made.

Yours faithfully,
Chris Wong
